

Tim Burton Stock Rules

1. Stock OEM 1980 or newer unless specified.
2. ALL AIR BAGS, windows, windshield, trim, plastic bumpers, grills, and lights must be removed.
3. Wheels must be original to the vehicle, tires must be street tread (no mud grips), max of 2ply, must be radial no bias ply, no inner tubes, and no doubles.
4. Hood and trunk must be open for inspection but can be tied in 6 places with #9 wire after. Hood must have a 12-inch or larger hole for Fire Department access.
5. Battery must be tied down and secure in the passenger floor or seat area, fuel tank must be mounted and secure in rear seat area. Batteries and gas tanks MUST be secured with NO movement. You can only have one automotive battery.
6. Doors can be tied shut with #9 wire in up to six places, no limit to duct tape in window openings. Doors must not open during the derby!
7. The only welding allowed is one seat bar, the seat bar must be secured and safely mounted behind the seat and attached to the door post with no more than 6x6 plate and the post must not be any larger than 4-inches in diameter. Seat bar is for driver protection only, NO cages allowed.
8. No welding the bumpers or bumper mounts OEM bumpers must mount exactly as they did from the factory, NO modifications to the shocks or mounts allowed. #9 wire is allowed and recommended on bumpers.
9. All motors, drivetrains, and fuel systems must be OEM stock to vehicle. Absolutely no aftermarket parts or exhaust, no modifications to suspension. No changing tire size to modify bumper height.

10. No aftermarket parts period. No welding or modifications to body's or frames, NO pre-bending body's or frames.
11. 4-point cage minimum of 3" round tube 1/4 thick or 2x6x1/4. Door bars, dash, and seat bars need to be 3x3x1/4. (If these requirements are not meet, you will cut the cage out.)
12. This is back to basic stock classes, if you spend more than a weekend building it, the car may be over built. This car should be built just like your grandma drove it off the show room floor.
13. MOST IMPORTANT: Call before you build, some rules may change before show time
Officials discissions are final.

Tim Burton
931-239-8095